IT Network and Systems Administrator

LightingNewYork.com is one of the fastest growing online lighting and home goods retailers in the US and we're looking to expand our team. As we grow, we continue to look for innovative ways to use technology to collaborate as a team and bring best-in-class experiences to our customers. We currently have a need for someone to help us develop, configure, manage and support the various systems that help us bring our initiatives to life. If the idea of working with a small team that develops strategies, implements secure solutions, and manages for excellent up-time and service sounds like fun to you, then we want to meet!

We're looking for candidates that have experience in outsourced data center management, SAAS platforms and solutions, internal (on-premise) development environments, and working with a variety of third parties. You should be experienced in implementing security policies for network environments, phone systems, and general PCI Compliance. We operate both in the office and remotely - and you'll be responsible for ensuring security, connectivity, and the health of the entire network. We are growing at a rapid pace and have some significant projects on the horizon, so we want somebody that enjoys collaboration, collective teaching, and the pursuit of life. In
